MINES WILL SHUT DOWN

Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana on April 1st.

SUSPENSION PENDING TWO-YEAR WAGE SCALE DICKER

Cleveland, March 20.—All the mines in the bituminous coal fields of Illinois, western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana will shut down on April 1, and 200,000 miners will quit for at least two weeks, according to the operators' and miners' union officials who conferred here today.

It will not be a strike, they said, but merely a suspension of operations, pending negotiations for a two-year wage scale, to follow the present one, which expires on March 31.

To The Public

I am in the Automobile Contest and hope to win; but I cannot do so without the assistance of friends. I ask that anyone who is not specially interested in the contest, and who has not pledged their votes, will vote them for No. 173. Anything you can do will be greatly appreciated.

Car Jumps Track at Sunset Mines

In an attempt to back some cars in the switch at Sunset Mines, early Thursday morning, one of them accidentally jumped the track. The Earlinton wrecker was summoned immediately, and the car was replaced on the track. No serious damage was done to property or two the car.

Backache Almost Unbearable

Is an almost certain result of kidney trouble. D. Toomey, 803 E. Olive St., Bloomington, Ill., says: "I suffered with backache and pains in my kidneys which were almost unbearable. I gave Foley Kidney Pills a good trial, and they done wonders for me. Today I can do a real hard days work and do not feel the effects." Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney and bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Sold by St. Bernard Mining Co., Incorporated, Drug Department.

RALPH BINGHAM

Entertained People of Earlinton Tuesday Night

On last Tuesday evening Ralph Bingham, the foremost entertainer on the American platform delightfully entertained the people of Earlinton at the Temple Theatre. His entertainments are of the very highest class, and are sure to please even the most fastidious.

His rendition of "Denny Dever" was exceedingly good.

The house was full and every one enjoyed the entertainment thoroughly. This is the number of the Lyceum Course; and as it was such a success the management will have five numbers next year instead of three. They are to be congratulated upon securing such interesting numbers, and it is hoped the ones they get in the future will prove to be as good.

Harsh physics react, weaken the bowels, will lead to chronic constipation. Doan's Regulator operate easily. 25c a box at all stores.

To School in Spite of All Difficulties

Any one at all familiar with general conditions as to our country schools and the absolute indifference on the part of many parents, where there are difficulties of weather and of distance to be overcome, will appreciate and applaud any known exception to the general rule—any instance where parents face their duty and overcome such difficulties for the education and education and comfort of their children.

Occasionally, but only occasionally, such incidents come to light in the details of testimony given before the County Board of Education during hearings in cases of boundaries of school districts, locations of school houses, and the like. One such notable instance is that of Ed Rogers, living in the sparsely settled section of the country out from Mannington, in the old Bailey district. He lives two and a half miles from the country school and has little of this world's goods. The country is poor and rough and sometimes swollen streams to cross. He has two children large enough to go to school and he owns two mules. Ed has the enviable record of having taken his children to school on these mules constantly, so that they did not miss a single day during the last school year.

This is but the duty of the interested and conscientious parent, to be sure, but it so marks the rare exception to the usual rule of lazy indifference as to deserve especial notice from friends of progress in our rural schools, where there are many difficulties to overcome, the chief of them being this very indifference. The Bee would like to know any—of many—other specific instances like this.

OKLAHOMA HAS MINE DISASTER

Nine Men Escape After Explosion Leaving Seventy Entombed

AIR FORCED IN MINE IN SPITE OF THE FIRE

M'Alister, Okla., March 20.—Nine men escaped from the M'Alister mine immediately after the explosion and seventy men are still entombed, with the mine burning and another explosion momentarily feared, according to telephone messages received here. Air was forced into the mine this afternoon, despite the fire, but those at the mouth of the shaft fear all the men remaining in the mine are dead.

Fort Smith, Ark., March 20.—Mine No. 2 of the San Bois Coal Co., at M'Alister, Okla., was wrecked today by an explosion of gas in the ninth level.

Fire and smoke have thus far prevented an effective work of rescue of the eighty-five men imprisoned in the debris.

One body has been brought out. It was so badly burned that experienced miners believe there is little hope that any of the men composing the day shift at the mine at the time of the blast will escape alive.

C. A. Glossner, 24 Ontario St., Rochester, N. Y., has recovered from a long and severe attack of kidney trouble, his cure being due to Foley Kidney Pills. After detailing his case, he says: "I am only sorry I did not learn sooner of Foley Kidney Pills. In a few days time my backache completely left me and I felt greatly improved. My kidneys became stronger, dizzy spells left me and I was no longer annoyed at night. I feel 100 per cent better since using Foley Kidney Pills." Tonic in action, quick in results. Try them.

Railroad Man Who Obeyed Rules

Down in California lives a man who firmly believes in an eye for an eye and a clam for a clam. He's the station agent in a small town on the Southern Pacific. Being an old time employee of the company, one of those trusted individuals who follow rules to the letter and never attempt to improve upon them, he made many enemies among the patrons of the road. At last they rose up in a body and swarmed him with a lengthy protest, which was duly signed and mailed to the company.

Now, the railroad officials had great faith in this particular agent, so much faith, in fact, that they complimented him for following the rules, and made him a present of the protest. In due time the paper was nicely framed and hung in the waiting room. There it was read by the citizens, whose anger by this time knew no bounds.

Also it served a purpose, for every time one of the citizens asked a favor of the agent he would point to the framed protest and tell him to be on his way.

Moral: Don't blame the employee for following instructions and holding his job. If you must kick, let loose at the "higherups."

—Spokesman Review.

MINERS SAY THEY WILL NOT WORK

Except For Advances of Wages the Operators Declare Impossible

PENNSYLVANIA, OHIO, INDIANA AND ILLINOIS WILL CLOSE DOWN APRIL 1

Cleveland, O., March 21.—Ten per cent. increase in pay, with a shortening of hours equal to another 10 per cent. increase, was demanded by the miners today as the only basis upon which they will continue to work in the bituminous coalfields after April 1.

Mr. White said the demand was in the nature of an ultimatum, and if the mines were not to be worked, it would be because the operators made concessions.

The demand was presented at another conference of the thirty-two miners representing the union, and the thirty-two operators in the four states directly concerned, who are endeavoring to arrange a new two-year wage scale to take the place of the present one, which is just expiring.

Answering the miners' demands, the operators declared, under the present earning power of the mines, they could not afford to grant the increase. They insisted on a decrease of 10 per cent in the present pay.

ENGINEER'S WAGE CONFERENCE

Adjournment Follows a General Discussion of the General Conditions

Engineers' wage conference has adjourned. The conference was largely taken up in a general discussion of the demand situation.

J. C. Stuart, chairman of the general managers' committee, in his discussion, brought out that there were 31,087 fewer employees on the fifty roads in the eastern territory in 1911 than in 1910. Wages in 1911 showed an increase of $49,976,216 over the wages paid in 1910. Gross earnings on the fifty roads increased only $22,595,121, while the decline in net earnings was $40,988,589.

It, therefore, appeared that the major part of the increased expenses was due to the wage increases granted in 1910.

Washington, March 20.—Joy dispossessed gloom of its occupancy of the La Follette headquarters in Washington today for the first time since the senator's speech to the publishers in Philadelphia. The place was radiant because of the news from North Dakota.

La Follette men say the senator's victory was due first to his commanding position as a real progressive. They add that Mr. Roosevelt's support by some of the standpatters in North Dakota weakened his claim in the eyes of the people of the state.

"If good feeling toward each other rather than hatred and ill will shall become the popular doctrine, we shall have as good times in this country as we have ever known."

—Robert S. Lovett

The New Jersey state Senate defeated a woman's suffrage measure for that state, the resolution receiving but three votes. Now, how will Gov. Wilson, presidential candidate, explain this to "the female of the species" who is more vociferous than the male?

The British parliament is enacting a law fixing a minimum wage schedule for miners of that country. Some one rises to say that perhaps the English Government cannot force the operation of coal mines at a loss, even under a minimum wage law.

Do you know that of all the minor ailments, colds are by far the most dangerous? It is not the cold itself that you need to fear, but the serious diseases that it often leads to. Most of these are known as germ diseases. Pneumonia and consumption are among them. Why not take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and cure your cold while you can? For sale by all Dealers.

Too Much Continuous Performance. Little Madge contracted appendicitis, and had to be sent to the hospital to have an operation performed. She bore it all very coolly and pluckily. When she became convalescent, the surgeon came to remove the stitches that had been put in the wound. The child's plea of dignity was very much upset, and she demanded, indignantly: "Do you s'pose I come here to be all stitched up and then unpicked again?"

Coming Soon — "The Commercial Traveler"—Presented by Lem B. Parker

The Commercial Traveler, which comes to the Temple Theatre on April 8th is the latest of the modern problem plays from the pen of Lem B. Parker and is considered by the critics to be his best work. It deals with the story of the old triangle in matrimonial affairs treated from a new angle, a wronged wife, spruiging her wealthy husband takes the part of the innocent western girl he has ruined and by her comfort and support sets her on the right road to wealth, health and happiness. All through the play, while it tells an intense human interest story, there is a vein of comedy constantly creeping forth that relieves the tense situations and makes a complete well rounded production. The cast is an excellent one and with its special scenic equipment, makes one of the strongest attractions which will visit us this season. The seat sale will open at the news stand on Saturday April 6th.

With the mines running every day and other public work begging for laborers there is no reason why any body in Earlington should seek to support himself by any unfair or dishonest means.

We are sorry to learn that some of our people will keep unusually late hours and pilfer around in places where they have no business and thus be classed as suspects. Let's keep our boys and girls off the streets during the late hours of the night.

Love Souls.

Deep hearts, sage minds, take life as God has made it; it is a long trial, an incomprehensible preparation for an unknown destiny. This destiny, the true one, begins for man with the first step inside the tomb. In the meanwhile, love and suffer, hope and contemplate. Woe, alas! to him who shall have loved only bodies, form, appearances! Death will deprive him of all. Try to love souls; you will find them again.—Victor Hugo.

Miss Minerva
and
William Green Hill

By
FRANCES BOYD CALHOUN

(Copyright, by Bally & Britton Co.)

"I ain't going to be tied into no meanness, 'cause I'm so good," continued the reformed one, after a short silence during which he had seen Sarah Jane turn her back to him, "but I don't believe I'll be no harm 'tue' to come over and set in the swing with you; maybe I can 'fluence you to be good like me and keep you from 'tiding little boys into mischief. I think I'll just come over and set a while and help you to be good," and he started to the fence. Sarah Jane turned around in time to frustrate his plans.

"You git right back, Jimmy," she yelled, "you git erway f'om dat-er fence an' quit confabbin' wid dat-er Willyum. Fixin' to make some mo' injuns out o' yo-self, ain't yeh, or some yuther kin' o' skeercrows?"

Billy strolled to the other side of the big yard and climbed up and got on the tall gate post. A stranger, coming from the opposite direction, stopped and spoke to him.

"Does Mr. John Smith live here?" he asked.

"Naw, sir," was the reply; "don't no Mr. 'tall live here; jest me an' Aunt Minerva, an' she turns up her nose at anything that wears pants."

"And where could I find your Aunt Minerva?" the stranger's grin was ingratiating and agreeable.

"Why, this here's Monday," the little boy exclaimed. "Of course she's at the Aid; all the 'omans roun' here goes to the Aid on Monday."

"Your aunt is an old friend of mine," went on the man, "and I knew she was at the Aid. I just wanted to find out if you'd tell the truth about her. Some little boys tell stories, but I am glad to find out you are so truthful. My name is Mr. Algernon Jones and I'm glad to know you. Shake! Put it there, partner," and the fascinating stranger held out a grimy paw.

Billy smiled down from his perch at him and thought he had never met such a pleasant man. It was such an old friend of his aunt's maybe she would not object to him because he wore pants, he thought. Maybe she might be persuaded to take Mr. Jones for a husband. Billy almost hoped that she would hurry home from the Aid, he wanted to see the two together so.

"Is you much of a cusser?" he asked solemnly, "cause if you is you'll hatter cut it out on these premises."

Mr. Jones seemed much surprised and hurt at the question.

"An oath never passed these lips," replied the truthful gentleman.

"Can you churn?"

"Churn—churn?" with a reminiscent smile, "I can churn like top."

Jimmy was dying of curiosity, by the gate was too far away for him to do more than catch a word now and then. It was also out of Sarah Jane's visual line, so she knew nothing of the stranger's advent.

"And you're here all by yourself?" inquired Billy's new friend. "And the folks next door, where are they?"

"Mrs. Garner's at the Aid, an' Mr. Garner's gone to Memphis. That is they little boy a-settin' in they yard on they grass," answered the child.

"I've come to fix your Aunt Minerva's water pipe," said the truth-loving Mr. Jones. "Come, show me the way; I'm the plumber."

"In the bath room?" asked the child. "I didn't know it needed no fixin'."

He led the agreeable plumber through the hall, down the long back porch to the bath room, remarking:

"I'll jes' watch you work." And he seated himself in the only chair.

Here is where Billy received one of his greatest surprises of his life. The fascinating stranger grabbed him with a rough hand and hissed:

"Don't you dare open your mouth or I'll crack your head open and scatter your brains. I'll eat you alive."

The fierce, bloodshot eyes, which had seemed so laughing and merry before, now glared into those of the little boy as the man took a stout cord from his pocket, bound Billy to the chair and gagged him with a large bath towel. Energetic Mr. Jones took the key out of the door, shook his fist at the child, and went out, and locked the door behind him.

Jimmy seeing no hope of eluding Sarah Jane's vigilance, resorted to strategy and deceit.

"Tain't no fun setting out here," he called to her, "so I'm going in the house and take a nap."

She willingly consented, as she was through with her frowning and thought to snatch a few winks of sleep herself.

The little boy slipped quietly through the house, noiselessly across the back yard and into his father's big garden, which was separated from that of his neighbor by a high board fence. He quickly climbed the fence, flew across Miss Minerva's tomato patch and tiptoed up her back steps to the back porch, his little bare feet giving no sign of his presence. Hearing curious noises coming from the bath room, where Billy was bumping the chair up and down in his efforts to release his mouth, he made for that spot, promptly unlocked the door and walked in. Billy by scuffling and tugging had freed his mouth from the towel that bound it at that moment.

"Hush!" he whispered as Jimmy opened the door, "you'll get eat up alive if you don't look out." His tone was so mysterious and thrilling and he looked so scared tied to the chair that the younger boy's blood almost froze in his veins.

"What you doing all tied up so?" he asked, in low, frightened tones.

"Mr. Algernon Jones done it. I spec' he's a robber an' is jes' a-robberin' right now," answered Billy.

"Till untie you," said his chum.

"Naw; you better not," said Billy bravely. "He might git away. You leave me jes' like he fixed me so's you can try to ketch him. I hear him in the dinin' room now. You leave me right here an' step over to yo' house an' phone to some mens to come and git him quick. Shet the do' ag'in an' don't make no noise. Fly, now!"

And Jimmy did fly. He again took the garden route and in a minute was at the telephone with the receiver to his ear.

"Hello! Is that you, Miss Central? This is me," he howled into the transmitter. "Gimme Miss Minerva's beau. I don't know his number, but he's got a office over my papa's bank."

His father being out of town, the little boy shrewdly decided that Miss Minerva's beau was the next best man to help capture the robber.

"Miss Minerva what lives by me," he shrieked.

Fortunately Central recognized his childish voice and was willing to humor him, so as she too knew Miss Minerva's beau the connection was quickly made.

"Hello! Is that you, major? This is me. If you don't want Mr. Algernon Jones to be robbing everything Miss Minerva's got you getter get a move on and come right this minute. You got to hustle and bring 'bout a million pistols and guns and swords and tomahawks and all the mans you can find and dogs. He's the fiercest robber ever was, and he's already done tie Billy to the bath room chair and done eat up 'bout a million cold biscuits, I spec'. All of us la 'bout to be slewed. Goodby."

The plump, round gentleman at the other end of the wire heard this amazing message in the utmost confusion and consternation. He frantically rang the telephone again and again but could get no answer from the Garner's home so he put on his hat and walked the short distance to Miss Minerva's house.

Jimmy was waiting to receive him at the front gate, having again eluded Sarah Jane's vigilance.

"Hush!" he whispered mysteriously, "he's in the dining room. Ain't you bringin' nobody else? Got your pistol and come on."

Mr. Algernon Jones, feeling safe and secure for the next hour and having partaken of a light lunch, was in the act of transferring some silver spoons from the sideboard to his pockets when a noise at the dining room door caused him to look in that direction. With an oath he sprang forward, and landed his fist upon the nose of a plump gentleman standing there, bringing a stream of blood and sending him sprawling to the floor. Mr. Jones overturned a big-eyed little boy who was in his way, and walking rapidly in the direction of the railroad, the erstwhile plumber was seen no more.

NOTICE

To the public, Stallions and Jacks in service. Will make the season of 1912 with Hal Price P-58G. S. P. H. B. R. and High Lynn 2688 A. S. H. B. R. at my barn, located on the Greenville and Princeton road 5 miles east of Dawson Springs and 2 1-2 miles west of St. Charles and 1 mile south of Crabtree Coal mines, Hopkins Co., Ky.

Hal Price is the Stallion I purchased from D. M. Clark, Dawson Springs, Ky., last year and is too well known to breeders of this section to require any comment on his superior qualities. Hal Price P-58G. is a son of Brown Hal 2:12 1-2 and is a brother to Star Pointer 1:59 1-4, the world's famous race horse whose race record has never been equaled by any horse dead or living, so I deem it useless to go into detail about the great speed ability of the "Hal" family, as they are universally acknowledged the greatest of all families for extreme speed horses. Not only this, but they have won the admiration and commendation of all who have been so fortunate to come in ownership of one of these great horses. As to even temperament, cool-headed and quiet disposition they are without an equal. As to substance, stamina and good conformation they are unsurpassed, as to color, finish and action they are the superior of any. To sum it all in a nutshell, Hal Price is one of America's richest bred harness stallions and one of the strongest individuals in the world. It is embarrassing to his present owner to have to offer his service at such a low fee, but in view of the fact that we have a very inferior class of mares to mate with him, he will be permitted to serve for the very low fee of $15.00 to insure a living colt. High Lynn 2688, one of Kentucky's high class saddle stallions; he is an unbred Cabbell's Lexington, having three crosses to this famous strain of saddle horse breeding. High Lynn 2688, sired by High Wave 1241, he by Duluth 79, he by Cabbell's Lexington F. S., he by Gist's Black Hank, he by Blood's Black Hawk, High Lynn's first dam Adah Crutchfield 1309, she by Lynn Boyd 44, he by Tom Boyd 90, he by Cabbell's Lexington F. S., High Wave's dam, by Miller's Lexington 45, he by Cabbell's Lexington F. S. If you want a high class big style good doing Saddle horse, High Lynn 2688 is far in advance of anything in this section of the country for that class of horses. High Lynn and Hal Price are 16 hands high each, both are beautiful seal brown in color, High Lynn weighing 1175 lbs in medium flesh, Hal Price weighing 1200 lbs in same condition. If you mate your good mares with either of these great stallions, you not only avoid a mistake but you may feel assured that you are doing a cash business. The two great stallions will serve mares this season for exactly the same fee $15.00 to insure living colt.

Also two good Jacks, Black Bass and Dewey will serve at $8.00 to insure a colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare traded or transferred without my consent.
